THE INSTITUTIONAL DIRECTORY

The 1979 Institutional Directory provides the basic information needed to identify and contact the degree-granting institutions of New York State. It should serve as a useful reference for students and prospective students, New York State Education Department staff, the institutions themselves, and other individuals and organizations interested in postsecondary education. Supplemental tables and descriptive text are also included to provide a concise but comprehensive view of the size, scope, structure, and governance of the State's postsecondary educational system and its major institutional components.

Description of the Directory

Organization—Following this introduction, the publication is organized into four major sections:

- The University of the State of New York describes the structure of the postsecondary education system of the State within the context of The University.
- Listings of Degree-Granting Institutions present all of the institutions authorized to grant degrees in the State by sector. (See "Institutional Entries" below.)
- Appendixes provide additional information on institutional programs, student services, selected organizations, and Department offices and publications pertinent to postsecondary education.
- Index provides alphabetical listing of institutions by proper and popular name, as well as organizations and major topical areas.

Institutional Entries—A major institutional entry is presented if all three of the criteria below are met. (A major institutional entry is presented at the extreme left margin and in all capital letters.)

1. has its own legal existence
2. has its own degree-conferring authority
3. is currently operational

Each institutional entry presents the indicated information under four column headings:

Institution includes name of parent institution, general mailing address, and name and title of chief executive officer. Such information is also included for each branch campus as an indented entry.

In addition, an asterisk (*) identifies an institution (or a branch campus of an institution) as "associate only," meaning that the highest degree granted is the associate degree. These institutions may also offer extensive certificate, diploma, and other nondegree programs.

The remaining institutions ("bachelor's or higher") offer at least the baccalaureate degree; they may also offer the full range of awards from certificates to doctorates, or may limit themselves to graduate or first-professional degrees.

Telephone/SMSA-Region-County includes the area code and telephone number of the main switchboard and the three-part location code, consisting of the abbreviation of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (such areas are defined by the Federal government), the number of the Postsecondary Education Region of the Regents, and the number of the county of New York State. (See table 1 on page 3 and the maps on pages 4 & 5.)

Fall 1977 Enrollment includes the full-time and part-time undergraduate and graduate enrollment figures, as reported by the institutions on NYSED-2.4 of the Higher Education Data System—Opening Fall Enrollment, 1977. The figures for a major institutional entry include data for indented entries, except where separate figures have been reported for an indented entry; in such case, the major entry figures do not include that indented entry's data.

1977–78 Student Charges include tuition and required fees and room and board costs for students, as reported by the institutions on U.S. Office of Education form 2300-1 of the Higher Education General Information Survey (HEGIS).

The figure for tuition and required fees is based on the fixed sum charges required of such a large proportion of all students that the student who does not pay the charge is an exception. The figures shown are for one academic year, generally extending from September to June. In institutions where the amount of tuition and fees varies by class level, subject-matter major, courses taken, etc., an estimate was reported by the institution for the typical or modal amount required. In the case of the public university systems (SUNY and CUNY, including community colleges), the figures shown are for residents of the State, city, or county, as appropriate; i.e., out-of-State/-City/-County tuitions are not shown.

Tuition and fees are shown for undergraduate and graduate students only. Tuition and fees for students working toward first-professional degrees are not reported. The reporting forms define undergraduate students as those who have not obtained a bachelor's degree and are either in a bachelor's degree program or an occupational or general study program requiring one, two, or three years of college work. They define graduate students as those who have at least one standard bachelor's degree or first-professional degree and are or could be candidates for master's or doctor's degrees. Candidates for first-professional degrees (e.g., M.D., D.D.S., J.D., B.Th.) are not included in the graduate student category; thus, student charges for these students are not shown in this directory.

The room and board charges shown represent the cost for a typical student for an academic year. The room portion of the charge is based on one student sharing a room with one other student.

Sample Institutional Entries

Illustrations of how to read the items in an institutional entry are provided for quick reference on the inside front cover.

Major Changes in Institutional Listings

The institutional listings in this directory are based on changes occurring since the previous edition of the directory (January 1978). Such major changes are summarized and presented for quick reference on the inside back cover.

OF NEW YORK STATE

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

The University of the State of New York consists of all elementary, secondary, and postsecondary educational institutions, libraries, museums, art galleries, and such other institutions, organizations, and agencies as may be admitted to or incorporated by The University. Thus, the term "University" is used here in a different sense than is commonly employed. The University of the State of New York is a broad term encompassing all the institutions offering education in the State, both public and private, within a unified system of education and cultural and intellectual activity.

The University is vested with corporate powers of two broad types. It is empowered, first, to promote and encourage the extension and improvement of educational facilities and techniques throughout the State. Under this power, its functions include the rendering of advice and assistance to the many educational institutions and agencies of the State in the development and operation of their programs. Second, it is empowered to establish and enforce educational and professional standards in the interests of the people of the State. In the performance of this function, The University is empowered to charter, register, and inspect educational institutions; to license and supervise the professional conduct of practitioners in nearly all the professions; to certify teachers and librarians; and to apportion certain State financial assistance to public and private educational institutions.

The University of the State of New York was conceived as a universal system of education; it is still the most comprehensive system in the country, encompassing all education from kindergarten to postgraduate programs.

The Regents

The Regents of The University of the State of New York, established by the Legislature in 1784, form the oldest continuous educational agency in America. They are responsible for the general supervision of all educational activities within the State, presiding over The University and the New York State Education Department. The Regents and The University are established under the Constitution of the State of New York.

The Regents are elected by the New York State Legislature, one from each of the State's 11 judicial districts, plus four elected at large. They are elected for terms of seven years and serve without pay. The Chancellor and Vice Chancellor are elected from among their number by a majority of the Regents.

The primary function of the Regents is to set educational policy; they have legislative, executive, and judicial powers. Their policies are enumerated and initiated through the Rules of the Board of Regents, which have the full force and effect of law, and also through the publication of Regents position papers and other reports and pronouncements. As do all other State agencies and governing bodies, the Regents seek to implement their policy goals through recommendations to the Governor and the Legislature.

New York State's unique structure of educational governance has the great advantage of permitting coordination for all levels and sectors of education. In the area of education beyond high school, the Regents powers were strengthened by an act of the Legislature in 1961, which, as amended over the years, gives the Regents responsibility to formulate a statewide plan for the development of postsecondary education every four years. Under this mandate, the Board of Trustees of the State University of New York, the New York City Board of Higher Education (The City University of New York), and the independent and proprietary degree-granting institutions submit plans and recommendations for approval and possible inclusion in the quadrennial statewide plans and progress reports on those plans.

The President and Commissioner

The President of The University of the State of New York is appointed by the Regents and serves during their pleasure. The President serves also as the New York State Commissioner of Education, the chief executive officer of the New York State Education Department.

The duties of this position are both executive and judicial. In an executive capacity, the President and Commissioner directs the work of The University and the Education Department. General responsibilities include administering the policies established by the Regents and supervising the institutions of the State. With the approval of the Regents, the Commissioner promulgates the Regulations of the Commissioner of Education for putting into effect the Education Law and Regents Rules.

As a judicial officer, the President and Commissioner serves as a court of appeal for the public school system, adjudicating all controversies which may be brought forth under the provisions of the Education Law.

The New York State Education Department

Under the direction of the President and Commissioner, the Education Department serves as the administrative agency of the Regents and is charged with the general supervision of the educational system of the State. In fact, The University of the State of New York is the corporate name of the Education Department under the Education Law, with the Regents as its governing body.

The major functions of the Department center on the execution of Regents policy and the implementation of Regents responsibility for education at every level and in every sector. In performing these functions the Department renders a wide range of services to the institutions and people of the State.

The Postsecondary Education System[1]

The structure of all education in New York State flows from the total responsibility of the Regents; the entire system of postsecondary education falls within The University of the State of New York. A major functional responsibility of the Regents is the direction and development of a comprehensive system of postsecondary education including all institutions offering programs beyond the high school level. Such a system includes both degree-granting and nondegree-granting institutions.

Degree-Granting Institutions—All of the institutions authorized to grant degrees in New York State may be categorized into five sectors:

- Public-Special
- State University of New York (SUNY)
- The City University of New York (CUNY)
- Independent
- Proprietary

The Public-Special sector includes The University of the State of New York's Regents External Degree Program and the two federally sponsored academies (by virtue of their location within the borders of the State). The special nature of these institutions causes them to be grouped together; also, they cannot be placed accurately under any of the other sectors.

The SUNY sector, a statewide public university system, includes institutional units of seven types:

- University Centers
- Health Sciences Centers
- University Colleges
- Specialized Colleges
- Statutory Colleges
- Agricultural & Technical Colleges
- Community Colleges

The State University of New York was established by act of the 1948 Legislature as a corporate entity within the New York State Education Department. The purpose of this act was to provide an organizational mechanism for the coordinated development of publicly supported higher education on a statewide basis.

Under the aegis of the Regents, the State University system is governed by a board of trustees appointed by the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate. The Governor designates one member as chairman, and one as vice chairman. The board of trustees appoints the Chancellor of the State University of New York and other senior administrative officers of the central staff and individual campuses.

The CUNY sector, a citywide public university system, includes institutional units of three types:

- Graduate Center
- Senior Colleges
- Community Colleges

The City University of New York was established by act of the 1961 Legislature as a publicly supported institution of higher education in The City of New York. The New York City Board of Higher Education has jurisdiction over this university system. Part of the board's membership is appointed by the Governor and part by the Mayor of New York City. The board is separately empowered to sponsor community colleges and to be the board of trustees of its sponsored community colleges.

The Independent and Proprietary sectors include all nonpublic institutions[1] of several different types which have been established in a variety of ways. Some institutions have been created through the act of chartering under the Education Law. A charter is an instrument of incorporation admitting an institution to membership in The University of the State of New York. Historically, institutional charters have been granted by either the Legislature or the Regents. However, the Legislature no longer issues charters to educational institutions; most amendments to legislative charters are now made by the Regents. Others have been created by incorporation under the Business Corporation Law or under the Not-for-Profit Corporation Law. While the Regents do not incorporate educational institutions under these laws, such institutions may not be incorporated without the consent of the Regents or the Commissioner of Education.

Under the aegis of the Regents, individual institutional control is vested with the original incorporators, or their successors, acting as a board of trustees. The powers of trustees of institutions are outlined in section 226 of the Education Law.

Nondegree-granting Institutions—A significant component of the postsecondary education system exists outside of degree-granting institutions. An enormous variety of opportunities is provided by private trade, technical, business, and correspondence schools as well as occupational and other continuing education programs for adults, Federal and State manpower training programs, and apprenticeship and industrial training programs. The magnitude of this area of postsecondary education is evidenced in its vast array of programs—public and private, formal and informal, traditional and innovative, short term and long term.

Although not authorized to grant degrees, at least 500 institutions offer education beyond the high school level. These institutions conduct formally organized programs of study to persons beyond the age of compulsory school attendance and in a wide selection of postsecondary areas.

The nondegree-granting institutions are not listed in this directory. Such listings may be obtained from the Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Occupational and Continuing Education.

The Establishment of Degree Programs

The Regents of The University of the State of New York and the New York State Education Department have authority over all degrees conferred in the State and all programs leading to those degrees. (Out-of-state institutions must seek and obtain permission of the Regents to offer programs in New York State.) Basically, there are four aspects of the process leading to the actual operation of a degree program by an institution in the State.

[1] The distinction between institutions in the independent sector and those in the proprietary sector is that the former are nonprofit, while the latter are authorized to operate for the purpose of making a profit (e.g., individual proprietorships, partnerships, and stock corporations).

Registered Degrees—Only those degrees and corresponding degree symbols listed in the Regents Rules as "registered degrees" are authorized and approved. Any other degree terminology is not available for use.

Degree Authorization—Institutions acquire degree-conferring powers in the following ways:

Chartered institutions (or institutions otherwise incorporated by the Regents or the Legislature) are authorized to confer only those degrees for which their charters provide. Additional degree authorization requires charter amendment by the Regents. Other institutions must receive degree authorization from the Regents on a program-by-program basis. (Some chartered institutions, with no degree powers provided in their charters, have also received degree authorization on a program basis.)

The two public university systems derive general degree authorization from the respective establishing legislation. Sections 354 and 6201 of the Education Law establish provisions for the State University of New York and The City University of New York.

In addition, degree authorization is coupled to the statewide planning process, whereby master plan provision or amendment is a prerequisite to the first offering of any degree type on any campus.

Master Plan Provision—All degree-granting institutions are required to submit master plans every four years. These plans must be approved by the Regents; also, institutions must petition the Regents to approve amendments to their master plans. Such amendments are required for an institution to launch certain kinds of programs—which are subject to specific master plan amendment review and approval—before they can be registered by the Education Department. Generally, these include new doctoral and professional programs, programs leading to new degree titles or levels at the institution, and programs with special cost or other characteristics. The establishment of a branch campus also requires master plan amendment.

Program Registration—All degree programs must be registered by the New York State Education Department before they can be announced to the public or to prospective students and before any students can be accepted for enrollment. Once an institution has proposed a new degree program, the program must meet registration requirements and maintain this status throughout periodic re-registrations for continued existence. The Education Department is responsible for registering all degree programs, including those which prepare students to enter the licensed or certified professions, as well as academic curricula.

SELECTED PROFESSIONAL AREAS

Institutions listed under each profession offer educational programs for preparation in that profession. Although "professionally related programs" may be offered by these and other institutions, only those institutions currently operating "professional programs"—i.e., programs registered for professional (licensure) purposes by the New York State Education Department—are listed.

Details on experience, examination, and other requirements for admittance to these and other professions licensed by the Department, as well as on alternative educational preparation, may be obtained from the executive secretary for the appropriate State Board (list in appendix D). For the law profession, such information may be obtained from the Clerk, State Court of Appeals (Eagle Street, Albany, New York 12207) or the Executive Secretary, State Board of Law Examiners (90 State Street, Albany, New York 12210).

Information on institutions offering programs leading to licensure in nursing or certification in teaching can be obtained from the pertinent publications listed in appendix E.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

To equalize postsecondary educational opportunity in New York State, a number of special programs have been initiated. These programs are designed to meet the special needs of economically and educationally disadvantaged students. Among the strategies available to meet these needs are screening, testing, counseling, tutoring, teaching, and financial assistance.

In general, students in postsecondary educational opportunity programs are individuals from low-income families who have high potential for successful collegiate experience, but have not acquired the verbal, mathematical, and cognitive skills required for collegiate-level work. Opportunity programs are available for individuals living in urban and rural areas, at the two- and four-year levels, at public and independent colleges, and in every academic discipline and career field. Students are selected without regard to sex, ethnicity, race, or religious background.

Additional information may be obtained from any individual college campus that offers such a program or from the central offices of the opportunity programs.

EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

In 1973, the State University of New York developed special centers—Educational Opportunity Centers—merging the urban centers and cooperative college centers that had operated independently of each other since 1966.

The SUNY Educational Opportunity Centers provide educational services for persons with disadvantaged backgrounds. Such services include programming in basic education, high school equivalency, developmental education for college preparation, and occupational training. Through their student personnel services departments, the centers also provide referral services and information about other agency services, job opportunities, and postsecondary education opportunities in the State University, City University, and independent colleges and universities.

Each Educational Opportunity Center (EOC) is administered by a local campus of the State University of New York. Additional information may be obtained from any individual EOC or from the central office responsible for their statewide coordination.

FINANCIAL AID

Financial aid programs for postsecondary students in New York State are many and varied. It would be impossible and, perhaps, misleading to list every possible Federal, State, private, foundation, corporate, institutional, or other aid program for which a particular student enrolled in a particular program and institution might be eligible. However, this section does outline briefly the Federal and State student aid programs.

Students and prospective students should also refer to the individual college or university financial aid office or to counselors in the local high school, bank, library, Veterans Administration office, or other regional organizations providing academic counseling services. Most college campuses administer or have information about local scholarship and loan funds.

In addition, financial aid information and materials are provided through the central offices of the two public university systems and through the coordinated center of the independent sector.

Many of the major aid programs are managed by the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation. The Corporation administers the Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) and the Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSLP); it also processes Regents Scholarship Program award applications and payments. The Corporation can provide information and answer questions about financial aid, and publishes a brochure entitled The Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) and Other Financial Aid Opportunities for New York State Students. This is updated regularly to reflect Congressional and Legislative changes affecting eligibility requirements and award and loan amounts.

FINANCIAL AID

The following brief descriptions serve to identify the major State and Federal student financial aid programs available to New York State residents. Additional information concerning application procedures, selection of recipients, allocation of awards, award schedules and additional aid programs is available in a New York State Education Department publication entitled *Standard Current Descriptions of State and Federal Student Financial Assistance Programs.

STATE PROGRAMS

Tuition Assistance Program (TAP)

There are over 300 institutions in New York State where State residents may use the TAP award, including most of those listed in this directory. The amount of an award depends on financial need, as computed on the basis of New York State net taxable balance, with the family's other dependents and other children in college being taken into consideration. TAP awards range from $100 to $1,500, depending on need and level of study.

Regents Scholarship Programs

Regents College Scholarships of $250 per year are awarded to New York State residents who qualify through competitive examinations.

Regents Basic Nursing Scholarships of $250 per year are awarded competitively to New York State residents pursuing a basic nursing education resulting in a degree or diploma.

Regents Awards for Children of Deceased and Disabled Veterans of $450 a year are awarded to New York State residents who are children of certain deceased and disabled veterans and who attend approved institutions in the State.

State Aid to Native Americans

Awards of $1,100 per year are available to members of Native American tribes located on reservations within New York State who are attending approved institutions in the State.

Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSLP)

Through the GSLP, banks and other private lending institutions offer loans of up to $2,500 per year, depending on level of study, to New York State full- and half-time students in approved programs. These loans are guaranteed by the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation. Because of the number of participating lenders and their branch offices, residents of the State may readily receive information about, or apply for, a student loan in the area in which they reside. Loans are made by commercial and savings banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and pension and welfare funds. Individuals desiring loan assistance should contact their own local lending institutions.

* Direct requests to: Office of Postsecondary Research, Information Systems, and Institutional Aid/Room 5B44 Cultural Education Center/Empire State Plaza/Albany, New York 12230.

FINANCIAL AID

Work Incentive Plan (WIN)

The New York State Department of Social Services determines the eligibility of Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) recipients for WIN. The program provides awards covering the costs of tuition, books and related expenses for a one-year period of training in vocationally oriented curricula.

Tuition Deduction and the Parent's and Student's Savings Plan (PASS)

Beginning with the 1978 tax year, New York State resident parents of dependent, full-time students may take a State and City income tax deduction for part of the tuition payment. They may also deduct amounts equivalent to payments into a qualified higher education fund of up to $750 for each full-time student in the family.

FEDERAL PROGRAMS

Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG)

BEOG is given by the Federal government to full- and half-time students who show financial need and who are attending approved educational institutions. Awards range from $200 to $1,400.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG)

SEOG's of up to $1,500 are awarded by the Federal government through postsecondary institutions to students in financial need attending approved institutions.

National Direct Student Loans (NDSL)

These Federal loans are available to students in full- and half-time degree programs offered by approved educational institutions. Amounts which may be borrowed range from $2,500 to $10,000, depending on level of study.

College Work-Study Program (CWSP)

This Federal program is available to students in full- and half-time degree programs at approved educational institutions who meet financial need requirements established by the Federal Government.

Social Security Payments to Children of Deceased or Disabled Parents

Financially dependent students between 18 and 22 years of age are eligible for Social Security benefits if they have a deceased, disabled or retired parent. These benefits apply only to full-time undergraduate students.

Aid to Native Americans

Grants are awarded on the basis of financial need to students who are at least one-fourth American Indian, Eskimo or Aleut, and are enrolled in a four-year postsecondary program.

Veterans Administration Educational Benefits

Monthly benefits are available to persons who served in the Armed Services for more than 180 days between January 31, 1955 and January 1, 1977. Benefits vary by the number of months of active service, by the number of dependents and by the full-time or part-time status of study.
